at the University of Illinois
College of Medicine at Rockford

FEBRUARY 22, 2008

Friday, February 22, 2008

Good evening and welcome.

I would like to thank all of our authors at the University of Illinois College of Medicine at Rockford, and from our local medical partners in the community, for your important contributions to medical and healthcare literature. Your diligence to writing or editing articles, books and other publications demonstrates your commitment to the College's mission of education, innovation and service.

As you look through our recognition booklet, you will see why we felt it necessary to highlight all of the medical publications that come from the College and the Rockford community. This event is an important opportunity for us to recognize the significant role that our faculty and community doctors make to further medical and healthcare education through research and publications. From books that can be found at local bookstores, to articles in the New England Journal of Medicine, it is truly amazing to see how you go above and beyond to educate others.

This evening is just one small way that the College can say thank you for all of your work. We hope that you will continue to contribute to the medical community through your research, and continue to produce publications that will help us educate our students and the patients we serve.

Thank you again and best regards,

Martin S. Lipsky, MD
Regional Dean
